Burton R. Clark is Allan M. Cartter Professor of Higher Education and Professor of Sociology at the University of California at Los Angeles. Until the summer of 1980, he was Professor of Sociology and Chairman of the Higher Education Research Group (within the Institute for Social and Political Studies) at Yale University. From 1969 to 1972, Dr. Clark was Chairman of the Department of Sociology at Yale. Dr. Clark was a Scholar-in-Residence at the Aspen Institute for Humanistic Studies and a visiting scholar in several foreign countries including; France, Japan, Sweden, Poland, Canada, and Protugal. He is also a past chairman of the section on sociology of education of the American Sociological Association. For many years he held a joint appointment in sociology and education at the University of California at Berkeley and the Center for the Study of Higher Education. Professor Clark was a member of the President's Science Advisory Committee, Panel on Youth, which was responsible for the influential 1973 report entitled Youth: Transition to Adulthood. He is perhaps best known for his research on the comparative aspects of institutions of higher learning. This bibliography should, however, quickly demonstrate the range and scope of his published works in both higher education and social theory.
